Mr. Peter Hill, of Jacox, is badly afflicted with boils. It hardly seems credible, but he has a boil on his right arm that is as large as a goose egg.

A new house has just been completed, and a new plank-walk laid on Nicholas street, which adds very much to the looks of that part of town.

It rained very hard here last Saturday and Sunday. One of our townsmen claims there was a barrel lying in his yard with both ends knocked out, and that it rained in at the bunghole faster than it would run out at the two open н. ends.

THE Democratic primary election in New Orleans last Wednesday to elect delegates to the Louisiana State Convention resulted in a sweeping victory for the friends of the lottery. The total vote was 26,785, and the lottery men won by 11,147 majority, carrying every ward. The indications are that Judge S. D. McEnery, who has the support of the lottery element, will be the Democratic nominee for Governor.

sk-It is with pain that we announce the death of Mr. Jacob McCarty, which occurred at his home near here on the 8th inst. He died of pneumonia, and was about 70 years of age. He was an honest upright man, and leaves many friends to mourn his loss. The bereaved members of the family have the sympathy of the entire community.

On last Wednesday your correspondent with many others witnessed the interesting spectacle of three large rafts of ash and cherry lumber floating down Greenbrier river. It was a sight worth looking at, and as one gazed at the huge fleets rising and falling on the wild waves, the power of water and the labor and ingenuity of man were forcibly brought to mind. The rafts belonged to Messrs. W. H. Overholt and C. W. Callison, and were safely piloted and landed in Ronceverte by Messrs, C. W. Callison, John Callison and Wm. Gum. The one manned by Mr. C. W. Callison contained 35,000 feet, the largest raft that has ever gone down the Greenbrier. Your correspondent had the pleasure of making the trip with Mr. Gum, and found him a very efficient pilot. There is considerable labor and danger involved in running a raft, but notwithstanding that a bad mishap hardly ever occurs, Going down we were struck with the beautiful scenery along the river. The axe struck his foot on the outside near the ankle, cutting back into the ankle and making a frightful wound. He was attended by Drs. Larue and Wallace. They think in all probability the limb will have to be amputated, but are employing every means to avoid it.

On the 6th inst., while out hunting, Messrs. D. C. Hill and Henry McMillion killed a large black snake, measuring 4½ feet. Mr. Wm. Gum, of this place, also killed a large garter snake on the same day.

Mrs. Etta Payne butchered and sold to Messrs. Overholt & Payne last week a turkey gobler that weighed 26 lbs net. Who can beat it?

Mr. M. Lee Peyatt, of Independence, Kansas, is visiting his parents, sister, and many friends. Mr. Peyatt left here at the age of 20 to try his fortune in the far West and has been gone 17 years. There was great rejoicing at the old home over his return after such a long absence. He expresses himself as well pleased with the western country, and has succeeded fairly in business there. He will remain here about six weeks before returning.

We were visited last week by an oldfashioned snow squall which shook our domicile from centre to circumference, and sifted snow in through every crack and cranney, and nipped our lettuce, turnip greens and wild flowers. It was of short duration, however, and with the exception of cold and frosty nights, the usual fine weather prevails.

The protracted meeting which Rev. Wm. E. Miller, of the M. E. Church, South, commenced at this place two weeks ago has resulted in the conversion of 30 souls. There are six penitents at the altar now and great interest is manifested. May the good work go on.

However it has been a notable season for the bee-farmer, and the stores of honey secured are great. One hive, belonging to the writer, yielded a surplus of 112 pounds, and three others about 84 pounds each. James Gibson, on Elk, secured 1,200 pounds. Those who have a sufficient number of colonies consider it a fortunate circumstance when bees show no disposition to throw off swarms and thus devote their full strength to the storage of honey in the parent hive.

Allen R. Kinnison closed with the railroad company for the right of way at $2,040; the company is to build him a road out, and he is to release his right to fences. He owns a long, narrow farm on the banks of the river, the bottoms being something like three to five handred feet in width and over a mile long. He is a good farmer and has his place in a good state of cultivation .-The center of the line runs through his house, which is a comfortable residence of a story and a half, and over which he he has trained the finest grapevine in the country. The line also takes about half a mile of his private road. He will build a road up the mountain and out through Alvin Clark's place. The right to fences, which he released to the railroad, is estimated to be equivalent to $1,500.

The Pulp Mills.

Benjamin A. Richmond, chief attorney for the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company, has put a quietus on the many rumors concerning the intentions of the company by stating that they are going to move from Luke, Alleghany county Md, as soon as their mill in Greenbrier county, W. Va., is completed. This, he adds, they have determined upon whether prosecution for Potomac pollution is abandoned or not. This, he says, is final. A similar statement has been made by Mr. David L. Luke, Treasurer and Manager of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company. The new Greenbrier plant, work on which has commenced, will be at Caldwell, not far from Lewisburg, on the line of the Ches. & Ohio Railroad, and within six miles of the White Sulphur Springs, in West Virginia. It is stated the building will be made largely of steel and will cost over $1,000,000.-The intention of the Messrs. Luke is to make it the largest pulp plant in the United States. A railroad will be constructed from Lewisburg to Caldwell, which is on the Greenbrier riyer .- Baltimore Sun, of the 27th inst.

Col. R. S. Turk, editor of the Spectator, who has been absent from home since February 14th, spent Sunday in Staunton, but returned Sunday night to Baltimore, where he is assisting in closing the sale of a large amount of West Virginia lands lying in Pocahontas and Randolph counties. It is understood that probably 150,000 acres will pass in the deal, and that the price paid will possibly reach $1,000,000. He stated that this purchase is one of the most important ever made in the State, as it is the entering wedge to the purchase of the town site at Caldwell, W. Va., the building of a large plant for the manufacture of pulp there and the building of a railroad from Caldwell north through the counties of Greenbrier and The value of this rail-Pocahontas. road to Pocahontas county will be incalculable. The county is now forty miles from a railway station. The road if it follows the Greenbrier will about haive the county, and give it railway facilities no other county in West Virginia possesses. The county is about 60 miles long by about 20 miles wide and Greenbrier river divides it into two nearly equal portions, and this will place every citizen of the county within at least ten miles of the railroad and place more actual miles of railway in that county than any other county in the State. The windings of the river will make the actual miles something like eighty and will put hundreds of thousands of dollars into it which could not be sent there by a road built in any other direction. -Staunton Spectator.

Last week Isaac Jackson, who lives a short distance from here, killed the largest black rattlesnake eyer killed in the Leyels. It was 4 feet long, measured 9 inches around the body and had 12 rattles. There hasn't been a snake of its kinds seen or killed in the Levels for a great many years. From the Kanawha Gazette's Marlinton letter, dated April 27th, we clip the following:

The only man to enlist so far from this section is Joe Grant, a lumberman, who has been working in the camps on Williams river.

A good many of his friends are trying to get L. M. McClintic, the prosecuting attorney of this county, to run for Congress on the Democratic side but it can be authoritatively stated that he has no aspirations in that way whatever. He would make a very available candidate, and it is thought that if Pocahontas county is to be recognized by a nomination any time soon, it will be through him, as he is something of a power in politics.

This county will in all probability go solid for Judge A. N. Campbell, of Monroe county, for Congress in the Democratic convention. As judge of this circuit he greatly endeared himself to the people, and in 1896 ran ahead of his ticket, receiving a number of

On last Monday evening, the 11th, about three o'clock, that dread disease consumption ended the life of Orin Slaven, who lived near Mill Point. It has been but a short time since he worked in the Times office at Marlinton, and was looked upon as a promising young man. He leaves many friends to mourn his loss.

On last Wednesday, the 6th, Jacob Kellison, an aged and highly respected citizen, died at his home on Bruffey's creek. His death resulted from general debility and the ills attendant on old age. He was a useful man in the community in which he lived.

On last Thursday, the 7th, Calvin Spence died at the residence of his brother, G. W. Spence, on Greenbrier river, a short distance from here, of epilepsy, aged about 38 years. His remains were interred in the McNeil cemetery on last Friday.

On last Saturday, the 9th, Mrs. Pet Loury, wife of James Loury, died at her home near Huntersville, aged about 55 years. She was an estimable lady, and leaves many friends and relatives to mourn her loss.

Mrs. Spitzer died at the home of her

The relentless monster death has again visited us—taking one here and another there.

On last Friday, the 8th inst., Jacob Simmons died at his home near Williams' river, aged about 65 years. It will be remembered he was subject to kleptomania, and while taking some leather from Ellis McCarty's tannery last fall was apprehended, and from that time he began to decline. The crime together with illhealth and family troubles so preyed upon his mind that he gradually wasted away until death relieved him of his sufferings and his soul winged its flight to the God who gave it, and whose word teaches there is none perfect; no, not one.

On last Monday, the 11th inst., John Jordan Beard died at his home in Huntersville of la grippe. Mr. Beard was well known throughout the county.— He served a long time as Clerk of the County Court, and held other positions of trust. He was an honest, upright man, an exemplary christian and stood high in the estimation of all who knew him. Space forbids us to give in detail the eventful life of this noble man.

Miss Belle crosses the river twice a day going to and from While moving slowly across a few days ago in her canoe, which she handles with great expertness, she discovered what appeared to be a chunk of wood floating a little under the water. A closer inspection, however, proved it to be a large fish of the bluecat species. Raising her canoe pole which had an iron spike in the end of it she struck at the fish with great force, the spike piercing the fish's head and pinning it to the bottom of the river. With difficulty she ran the canoe ashore without losing her hold upon the fish, which was easily taken from the water as it was about expiring from the effects of the Miss Belle proudly carried it home and found that it measured two feet in length, weighed 17 pounds, and that its head would fill a small-sized frying-pan. URIAH HEVENER, one of the most widely known citizens of Pocahontas, was severely injured by a fall of his horse last week, and is still in a precarious condition. He was on his way to mill carrying a bag of grain. Opposite the residence of William L. Brown there is a very steep bank. In riding down this his horse tripped and fell throwing him on ahead and the sack of grain on top of him. It is thought that the horse struck him with an upward motion of his head as he fell. Hevener set the grain up on the road side and started through the fields to head off the horse which had gone back towards home. He had walked and run a good distance when a neighbor shouted to him that he had caught the horse. Just as he stopped he collapsed, and lay in the field on the cold ground until he could be carried home, and was thoroughly chilled. Mr. Hevener is about seventy years old and the accident was most serious for one of his years. - Pocahontas Times.

Mearly all the ice houses in this community were filled with ice during the recent cold snap. The ice was taken from near the mouth of Stamping Creek on the Greenbrier River, where perhaps a hundred men and teams can work without interfering with one another. The ice which was thick enough to hold up heavily loaded wagons gave way to the heavy rains of last Saturday and Sunday and now hardly a vestige of it remains.

We are having very dry weather, and some of our farmers are healtating about sowing wheat, fearing it will not come up. On Wednesday and Thursday of last week the thermoneter registered 90 degrees in the shade. Pasture fields are turning brown and the scorching heat of the sun has caused corn cutting to commence two weeks ahead of the usual time.

The re-union of Confederate Veterans at Marlinton on the last day of this month is about all that is talked of here. Big preparations are being made to entertain those who attend, and bands of music, oratory and good things to eat will draw an immense crowd. 'Rah for the re-union and n day of genuine unalloyed pleasure.

The sills and sleepers under the ground floor of the Presbyterian Church have rotted away, causing the floors and gallery supports to sink down.—

New sleepers and heavy locust sills are now being put in, and all of the woodwork which has given away stauchly re-placed.

Wm. Miller, who lives a short distance from here, informs us that one of his hay-stacks was carried off by the wind on last Saturday, the 11th. He was at work in a field near home when a whirl wind started near him with such terrific force that when it reached a haystack in its path it lifted the stack from the ground and carried it a considerable distance, scattering the hay all over the ground. The hay was stacked around a pole, which was also wrenched from the ground and carried with the hay. This approaches nearer to a cyclone than any winds we have ever had here.

G. L. Clark, builder and contractor, has just finished a handsome dwellinghouse for Geo. Lewis.

A new hotel has been opened near Edray, with D. W. Dever, proprietor.

C.J. Stuiting's daughter, Miss Mamie, who has been quite ill with fever, is recovering slowly.

A CORRESPONDENT writes us from Morgantown as follows:

The W. Va. University has now an attendance of about 400 students.— There will be at least 500 altogether.

The new president, Dr. Jerome H. Raymond, is a man of great power and ability. He is already immensely popular.

New courses leading to the degrees of Bachelor of Philosophy and Bachelor of Letters have been added, and the regular Classical, Scientific, Engineering, Law, Commercial and Agriculture courses have all been strengthened since last year. One more year of Latin and two more of Greek have been added to the A. B. course, making it one of the highest in the country.

The Greenbrier boys are doing nicely.

Building and Loan Companies.

A case is now pending in our Court of Appeals which is of vital interest to Building and Loan Companies doing business in this State. It went up from Parkersburg where a sale of property was ordered by the Building and Loan Co. for the payment of dues and interest. The plea of usury was put in and the Court of Appeals will, it is said, be called upon to determine whether the Company's contracts made with its stockholders or with those who borrow from it are indeed usurious.

By some building and loan menthis is regarded as a test case involving the existence of all the building and loan associations in the State, for none of them can live on simply six per cent. By others it is considered merely a question as to whether the association in this case—a foreign one—has complied with the laws of the State, an opinion of Judge Greer's, delivered some years ago, holding that building and loan

Hillsboro, Pocahontas County, Items,

On the lands formerly owned by Elisha Morrison, not far from the waters of Hill's creek, in a secluded spot, where lofty hills cast their black shadows over huge trees, uprooted by storms, and lying in disordered heaps, is a lonely grave. No tombstone records the the name of the poor unfortunate who has been laid to rest in that out of the way place. No one living in that section of country knows anything about the grave or whose remains it contains. Everything connected with it is wrapped in mystery, and perhaps will be until the silent sleepers of every land and nation shall be called on the resurrection day.

Among the improvements contemplated in this community during the summer is a dwelling house by J. D. Payne, one by Oliver Auldridge, one by Geo. Lewis and a plank walk, a quarter of a mile in length on Main street, by the town.

W. D. Clark, of this place, had three of his fingers nearly cut off by a door being accidentally shut against them.

Miss Susie Simmons, a dress-maker of Marlinton, has opened up here.

On last Sunday and Monday we had quite a snow storm here, and the weather is so cold that grave fears are entertained that the fruit and wheat will be greatly damaged.

Three to be Hung.

In the Criminal Court of Fayette county, on the 22nd, Clark Lewis and Albert Voiers, charged with the murder of Chas. Gibson, were found guilty and sentenced to be hung on the 25th of The Court had already fixed that day for the hanging of Jerry Brown, who assaulted Mrs. Radford at Deepwater last July. Wilbur Slaughter, implicated in the murder of Gibson, was sentenced to the penitentiary for life. The wife of Gibson confessed to murder in the second degree and her sentenced will be fixed later. Quite a number of others belonging to the cutthroat Montgomery gang are under indictment for the murder of Gibson and John Cochran, and it seems probable now that the number of the gang to be hung June 25th will be largely increased. If the Criminal Court keeps up this lick very long the Republican majority in Fayette will soon disappear.

To see a cat or dog catching mice is a common sight and we pay but little attention to it, but when a bird, and especially a small one, is found mousing, we at once become interested and regard it as a strange and uncommon thing. J, W. Beard, while having some corn husked recently, noticed a small bird sitting on a corn shuck near by. Thinking strange of it being so near where his hands were at work he watched it and found that it was catching mice. When a mouse was found uncovered by the removal of a corn shock the bird would swoop down on it, hammer it to death with its beak, and fly away with it. In a short time it would return to where the men were at work. A colored woman, the wife of Charlie Sprow, living on Mr. Cameron Clark's place, near town, died on the 26th ult., from a cancerous disease of the stomach, aged about 30 years.

There was considerable excitement here on last Saturday, the 30th, over a law case of John Cleek and Geo. Mc-Comb. It seems that a cow belonging to Mr. Cleek had been trespassing on Mr. McComb's lands, and his boy so beat her up with a stick and cut her with a corn cutter that she died soon after from the injuries inflicted. Cleek sought redress at the hands of the law, and was given a hearing along with McComb before Justice G. R. Curry .-Attorney W. A. Bratton, of Marlinton, appearing for the defendant. With the large number of witnesses on both sides and the spectators, who had gathered to see and hear, there was a considerable crowd, and the snow in front of Justice Curry's office was tramped clear out of sight. After an impartial hearing of the eyidence on both sides, the case was decided in favor of Cleek, and a judgment given him for $25 and costs. Hillsboro, Pocahontas County, Items.

The thermometer registered 40 below zero on last Monday morning, and those who have ice-houses are filling them with ice about four inches thick. The grip is prevailing to an alarming extent throughout this section of country. Every member of some households is stricken with it, one not able to wait upon the other. It clings to its victims with wonderful tenacity, and on the cupboard shelf vials of medicines, cups of boneset and lifeeverlasting, teas and mustard plasters remind one that it requires heroic treatment to loosen its hold. To the dwellings of the well to do and the cabin upon the mountain side our physicians are going day and night administering relief to the afflicted ones. We are glad to state

Can it be possible that there is any one who will refuse to contribute 25 or 50 cents? Can we believe there are persons in this community so lost to a sense of duty to the dead-so lost to the memory of the sweet ties and associations that bind them to loved ones-as to refuse to lend a helping hand to this worthy movement? God forbid. Go to the McNeil cemetery and note its condition, look at the rotten, tumble down fence, through which horses and cattle pass in and out at will; look at the once nicely-rounded mound, upon which loving hands had planted beautiful flowers, disordered and trampled flat; look at the broken tombstones and the brush, briars and weeds growing in wild profusion-who of us can look emotionless, indifferent and without indignation upon such a scene? Isn't it a burning shame-a blight and a mildew upon the good name of our community. Let us remove it. Let us build the fence and fix up the graves of our loved ones who have passed away. We leave the matter with the good, the intelligent, the Christian people of this community.

We have considerable sickness in this neighborhood. Mrs. Maggie Kelly is lying dangerously ill. Messrs. H. W. Burgess, J. B. Kennison and Marshall Peyatt are slowly recovering. Capt. W. L. McNeil still suffers a great deal from indigestion and heart trouble, but not-withstanding the Captain's indisposition his mind is remarkably clear, and his buoyancy of spirits and fondness for a good joke are just as characterstic of him as ever.

It is with pain that we announce the death of Mrs. Virginia Peyatt, who died at her residence here on last Friday morning, the 8th int., in the 76th year of her age. Although she had been in feeble health for a long time her death, preceded as it was by only three days sickness, was a shock to the community. She was greatly attached to her husband, Mr. Marshall Peyatt, whose snowy locks and tottering frame remind us that he must soon join her in the great beyond. Her married life covers a period of 57 years, and during that time she and her husband have lived most happily. In fact a more affectionate couple never lived. She had been a member of the M. E. Church, South, for many years, and was a good woman, circumspect in all the walks of life and highly esteemed by all who knew her. Three children-Mrs. Lizzie Isbell, of this place, and Wm. and
